

AGRARIAN TRANSITION IN VIETNAM AND THAILAND:

LESSONS FOR OTHER COUNTRIES IN SOUTHEAST ASIA

Vietnam and Thailand have both undergone agrarian transitions that overall are deemed as fairly successful in regards to productive performance and betterment of rural livelihoods.

How crucial have land tenure and land policy been to this process? What other factors have been decisive?

Wednesday January 15th 2020 13.30-15.30

4th floor Operations Building, Faculty of Social Sciences, Chiang Mai University

Christophe Gironde

Senior lecturer, Graduate Institute of International and Development Studies, Geneva

Discussant: Philip Hirsch, Professor Emeritus, University of Sydney / Chiang Mai University

Moderator: Daniel Hayward, Mekong Land Research Forum, RCSD

The Regional Center for Social Science and Sustainable Development
Chiang Mai University

THE GRADUATE
INSTITUTE
GENEVA